

re.verse / RVRS416 Entertainment - bio

Hypnotic live beats from a small band with a strikingly big sound, electrifying energy and mesmerizing flow. Re.verse is a collective of Toronto musicians, composers and producers that captivates its audiences by merging contemporary urban grooves with jazz improvisation in a curious and exhilarating way. At it's core is a trio of 6 string electric bass / synth bass (Damian Matthew), drums (Chino De Villa) and guitar (Robb Cappelletto) that has spent over 7 years mastering the art of creating entrancing, seamless live sets that guide listeners and audiences on an instrumental journey through a vibrant spectrum of classic and current sounds - hip hop, r&b, trap, (neo) soul, (future) funk, house, afro and latin tropical rhythms, breakbeats, drum & bass, live remixes and mashups, modern jazz, and more. With a growing repertoire of over 150 songs and a reputation for delivering riveting performances that last for hours, re.verse effortlessly mingles the past and the present, reimagining unforgettable songs throughout decades of urban music while bridging the gaps in between. With an EP and album on the way, and an exciting weekly new music series you can keep up with every Tuesday on their YouTube channel and other socials (@rvrs416 / <http://rvrs416.com>), join re.verse as they evolve with original music that merges their influences, connects dots and explores new pathways, while always keeping the groove locked and the vibrations high.
